hauled to the spot- Bro. Cooley boarded more hands while building the mill than Bro. Gould did - the most of the timber for the Pisgah together the fore part of May A.D. 1848 & Cooley told him dam & for the grist mill was paid for out of a horse sold by Cooley that he and Gould were a going to build a grist and saw some timbers were got out that he did not know who paid mill- nothing was said about the claim- he worked thirty for them- he had got the most of his pay- had received pay of days on the mill be understood all the time that the claim was both parties had received the most of Cooley.--- in partner ship- Gould was on the claim when they came up and 3rd Witness Aaron W. Cook. Testified that during the summer he supposed that Gould had been making these preparations- the of A.D. 1849 he worked as miller in the mill if Messers, Cooley & agreement was made between the parties- They sent for some Gould, and he judged from the way the Cooks were kept the of his tools four or five days before he commenced work- and monies divided, and the drafts drawn that they were equal he commenced work the 31st day of July- two long sticks were got partners, and from all that he could learn the firm was a firm out and the timber of the old mill from Winter Quarters was of Equeal Capital between them at that time, did not know on any bargain of contract, relative to business between the parties

Cooley did the most of the business out from home- he should judge that Cooley did bear more than one half of the Expense he was Employed by Cooley boarded by Cooley and was considered Cooleys hand- he received his pay out of the mill-

4th Witness John D. Parker, Testified that he had assessed that property twin but he could not testify with certain without seeing the roll= Bro Cooley said it was asked who took the head in the company and said that was no difference= Gould said it was Cooley and Gould= witness said he was strongly of the opinion that the firm was Cooley & Gould = Bro. Gould then presented the Indenture of sale between Cooley & Gould and Thomas Bateman read by the clerk-- 5th Witness Benj. Gardner testified- he was tending the grist mill of Cooley and Gould- he agreed with the two together he supposed them Equal in the firm when money was paid him
